However, few go on to become committed followers and disciples of Christ with a foundation built upon the word of God. It is the purpose of Relational Discipleship to create a culture of discipleship in the local church producing mature and fruitful disciples of Jesus Christ. For years, he has developed the tools needed for accomplishing these avenues and his recent book, Relational Discipleship Series, Randy's printed work is a masterful resource for any leader who desires to achieve a more productive ministry for the Kingdom of God. Dr. Timothy M. Hill General Overseer, Church of God Randy Ballard understands the Christgiven charge to the church to make disciples. These tools developed by the author called the Relational Discipleship Series will be a step in the right direction for any church serious about fulfilling the Great Commission. It is our goal to treat every customer in the way that they desire and deserve to be treated. Who We Are Why You Should Attend Training Resources Donate Home Contact Published in 1970, the book that started the biblical counseling movement. Jay Adams addresses the topics of counseling with theology. Published in 1973, this book was the first of its kind and still a beneficial resource. Detailed analysis of everything the Bible teaches on each of the three topics. Necessary resource for counseling cases involving marriage, divorce, and remarriage issues. Adams' own translation is featured in this unique series of commentaries 11 Books covering the NT and Proverbs in which the author relates Bible passages to discipleship and counseling topics. Fine, thorough study on the process of biblical change, including putting the flesh to death, renewing the mind, and becoming like Christ. Useful reproducible study sheets. Another practical and theologically precise book from the longtime Dean of Students at Bob Jones University. Specific studies and tools for use by "disciple makers" and biblical counselors. The exchange our sin for His righteousness.

Good theology is vital to good counseling and discipleship. One of the top five discipleship books; useful for strengthening the immature believer's understanding of life's purpose and how to respond to the truth of God's Word. Top author provides clear book on the despicable nature of sin, the Bible's methods for overcoming sin, and comments on specific common sins that must be overcome. Landmark 1995 book that weaves a fictional tale of psychology, biblical counseling, real life issues, and some memorable characters with practical teaching on biblical counseling principles. A well written, practical, biblical perspective on common struggles with food, the motives behind them, and the biblical solution to these sins. This extensive book examines the Christian culture's common unbiblical methods of decision making and the Bible's teaching on how to choose when no option is commanded by Scripture. This landmark book is Rich Ganz's testimony of how he went from secular psychiatrist to Christian to biblical counselor. Now a Pastor, Rich writes clearly and with memorable accounts. Medical Doctor Jim Halla has written the top book on the Bible's counsel for those who suffer from severe or unending pain. Pastor Dave Harvey combines theological truths about anthropology, bibliology, and sanctification with the forum of marriage. The result is practical truth for each stage of marriage. Medical Doctor Laura Hendrickson uses God's Word and the experience of her ministry to her own son to provide an excellent application of Scripture to a specific issue of our time. Dr. Hendrickson and Elyse Fitzpatrick discuss real life issues depression, anxiety, emotions and fear. The culture's solution prescription medications is contrasted with God's sufficient Word. Useful studies for discipling and biblical counseling. Each topic is addressed thoroughly. Studies are useful for personal growth, homework assignments, or as resources for topical studies.

Landmark book that addresses counseling theologically finding the Scriptures as the source for Godhonoring counsel and practically with Wayne Mack's "Eight I's" counseling model. Practical, challenging book for shepherds striving to please the Master by serving the flock. Only two translations render "doulos" as "slave." Dr. MacArthur unpacks the truth of this word that most NT authors used to describe themselves to point us to biblical views of self and Christ. John MacArthur's 1991 book claiming that the Word of God is sufficient for counseling Christians. A bold contrast of the counsel of Scripture vs. Thorough book that is vital for developing a biblical view of fear, anxiety, worry, and the solutions of God's Word for each. Carefully explained examples and application questions. A thorough collection of Bible studies, data gathering resources, and homework assignments essential for every discipler and biblical counselor. Wayne and Carol Mack use the wisdom derived from years of studying God's Word in regard to marriage to create a practical, useful book with plenty of precise questions and helpful resources. Wayne Mack's original collection of biblical counseling homework assignments is essential, especially in the unique and practical data gathering, log list, selfrating, and score card creations. Brilliant and systematic summary of the Scripture's teachings for the married Christian woman. A foundational and sweeping explanation of how the Scriptures address man and counseling. Detailed examination of biblical hamartiology and anthropology in regard to angry children. The book employs real life examples, practical exposition of Scripture, and understandable methods. Thorough study of the roles and responsibilities of a husband.

Medical Doctor and NANC Board Member Robert Smith explains the body, medicine, psychotropic drugs, physical versus nonphysical problems, depression, fatigue, sexual problems, sleep, and many other current medical issues from God's Word and the perspective of a physician. A case for Eldership that reflects the Word of God. Vital for church leaders. Solid, useful book addressing communication from God's Word. Love, Know, Speak, Do. This is the author's format for biblical counseling and discipleship. A person to person ministry can be enhanced by understanding the biblical principles of this book. Useful writing about how the Bible addresses common family conflicts and teen problems. Practical, useful, direct, and beneficial explanation of sexual relations physically and in regard to the theology of the Bible. Ed Wheat is a Medical Doctor and Biblical Counselor. Southern Baptist Theological Seminary Professor Don Whitney provides fine instruction for ten biblical disciplines taught in God's Word we disagree on Chapter 9. A must for disciplers. The rare book that addresses Christian parenting with a real, understandable balance of all the tools God gives parents to communicate with, love, teach, and train their children. A good read. My main purpose—as is true or should be true for every Christian in terms of whatever they do— is to magnify the Lord and help people see how glorious He is 1 Cor. 10:31; Rom. 11:36. But the question is, how can we do that. In that verse we find one of the last recorded commands He gave before He ascended back to His rightful place in Heaven Acts 1:9. And what was that command. It was the command that we should make disciples. According to Matthew 28:19, how are we to do that. The text says that we are to make disciples by helping people to so completely trust Jesus that they will want to live the way He wants them to live. Our Lord said that we should go and make disciples by teaching them to observe whatever He has taught us.

Implicit in that command are several factors. One of these factors is that we are to help people understand who Jesus is and that He is worthy of being trusted and obeyed. This will, of course, involve the work of evangelism, because certainly no one will be committed to observing everything He commands unless they understand and believe who the Bible says He is and what He has done for them on the cross. Moreover, according to Matthew 28:19, making disciples followers of Jesus will also involve teaching them to observe all that He commands. The key word in that phrase is the word observe. But what does observing involve. Answer observing will certainly involve knowing the basic truths that the Lord has taught and it includes putting those truths into practice in our lives. Observing will require clear teaching and the practical application of what is taught. Matthew 28:19 presents a wonderful challenge, responsibility, and opportunity to all of us as Christians. We are to teach others to know and obey God's will, which will involve doing the will of God that is laid out for us in this biblical text. It is not simply that we are to teach people to know the will of God, but also to actually do it. But how do we practically do that. How do we teach people to observe. But evangelism is only the beginning of fulfilling this responsibility. It will involve helping those who are evangelized to grow up in Christ, to become more like the Lord Jesus in their character and in their manner of life. And again I ask, how do we do that. Personally, I know of no other book that can be of more help in becoming a disciple of Jesus Christ through understanding and applying biblical truth to our daily lives than the The Pilgrim's Progress. In my opinion, there is no other book outside the Bible that can be a better guide for us in becoming disciples and making disciples.

There, of course, have been many books that have been written to help us in this twofold endeavor of being a disciple and making disciples. But personally, having been in the ministry since 1957, I have come to consider The Pilgrim's Progress to be the best discipleship, howandwhatto manual that is available. This book will aid us in clarifying what we should teach as it is chock full of biblical truth presented in a very interesting and understandable way. And more than that, it contains information and illustrations about how to actually teach and it overflows with practical examples of what it means to actually put God's Word into practice in our lives. In her study guide for The Pilgrim's Progress, Maureen Bradley has written, If we consider the success of literature to be in its influence over people, then Bunyan's book will possess such influence as long as the process of redemption from sin is something angels or men desire to look into. Theologians of the past such as Augustine, Calvin and Edwards have been recognized for their excellent teachings and writings, yet in the simple adventures of Christian the main character of The Pilgrim's Progress these same great theological truths are made to come to life before our very eyes. Bunyan turns theology and doctrine into an exciting adventure and imaginations are captured as these truths are personified. My intention in writing these two volumes on Christian life issues based on biblical truth found in The Pilgrim's Progress is to assist in the glorious task of being and making disciples. I pray that God will be pleased to use these two volumes to fulfill those twin tasks laid out for us by our Lord in Matthew 28:19. Questions 4 and 5 accessed on January 19, 2017. Mack Why I Wrote Anger and Stress Management God's Way — October 3, 2017 Stay Connected. First Name Last Name Email Address Mobile Phone The BCC exists to strengthen churches, parachurch organizations, and educational institutions by promoting excellence and unity in biblical counseling as a means to accomplish compassionate outreach and effective discipleship. For the magazine, see Christian History. One of the earliest Christian inscriptions found, it comes from the early 3rd century Vatican necropolis area in Rome. The inclusion of gentiles in the developing early Christian Church caused a schism between Judaism and Jewish Christianity during the first two centuries of the Christian Era. In 313, Emperor Constantine I issued the Edict of Milan legalizing Christian worship. In 380, with the Edict of Thessalonica put forth under Theodosius I, the Roman Empire officially adopted Trinitarian Christianity as its state religion, and Christianity established itself as a predominantly Roman religion in the state church of the Roman Empire. Christological debates about the human and divine nature of Jesus consumed the Christian Church for two centuries, and seven ecumenical councils were called to resolve these debates. Arianism was condemned at the First Council of Nicea 325, which supported the Trinitarian doctrine as expounded in the Nicene Creed. Growing criticism of the Roman Catholic ecclesiastical structure and its behaviour led to the Protestant movement of the 16th century and the split of western Christianity. The ancient historian Josephus describes four prominent groups in the Judaism of the time: Pharisees, Sadducees, Essenes and Zealots. This led to unrest, and the 1st century BC and 1st century AD had numerous charismatic religious leaders, contributing to what would become the Mishnah of rabbinic Judaism, including Yohanan ben Zakkai and Hanina ben Dosa. It holds special significance in Christian tradition as the age of the direct apostles of Jesus.

A primary source for the Apostolic Age is the Acts of the Apostles, but its historical accuracy is questionable and its coverage is partial, focusing especially from Acts 13 onwards on the ministry of Paul, and ending around 62 AD with Paul preaching in Rome under house arrest. The early Christian groups were strictly Jewish, such as the Ebionites and the early Christian community in Jerusalem, led by James, the brother of Jesus. Some of the early Christian communities attracted gentile Godfearers, who already visited Jewish synagogues. The inclusion of gentiles posed a problem, as they could not fully observe the Halakha. Saul of Tarsus, commonly known as Paul the Apostle, persecuted the early Jewish Christians, then converted and started his mission among the gentiles. The main concern of Paul's letters is the inclusion of gentiles into God's New Covenant, deeming faith in Christ sufficient for righteousness. Because of this inclusion of gentiles, early Christianity changed its character and gradually grew apart from Judaism and Jewish Christianity during the first two centuries of the Christian Era. By the beginning of the Nicene period, the Christian faith had spread throughout Western Europe and the Mediterranean Basin, and to North Africa and the East. A more formal Church structure grew out of the early communities, and variant Christian doctrines developed. Christianity grew apart from Judaism, creating its own identity by an increasingly harsh rejection of Judaism and of Jewish practices. Clement, a 1st-century bishop of Rome, refers to the leaders of the Corinthian church in his epistle to Corinthians as bishops and presbyters interchangeably. They had different interpretations of Scripture, particularly the divinity of Jesus and the nature of the Trinity. Many variations in this time defy neat categorizations, as various forms of Christianity interacted in a complex fashion to form the dynamic character of Christianity in this era.
